

Goodwill message for our new medical journal

As the President, and on behalf of the management team, lecturers and staff. I am very pleased to announce and support the production of the Journal of Medical Globalization (J Med Glob). I would like to encourage the authors of J Med Glob as it is an important step towards a public academic forum for lecturers, academics, researchers and interested people to present and exchange medical knowledge and health science thinking to be published in this journal.

The production of this journal, was undertaken in the collaboration with the working group of the Faculty of Medicine, BangkokThonburi University. The organizing committee intends this journal to be beneficial to society and the community by publishing articles that not only educate about medical science and health, but are also useful in study and research in various academic fields as well. I would like to appreciate and thank the journal committee, all authors and the network of institutions, together with all those involved who helped to create the J Med Glob. I wish it all the best and future success.
