

Editor's Note

Dear Readers,

The third issue of the 37th years of the Thai Journal of Veterinary Medicine is now ready for our readers. In this issue we are honoured to have Dr. Elisabeth Persson from Swedish Univ of Agricultural Sciences on our editorial board. Her experience will help moving the TJVM to another step. However, we also would like to thank the board of reviewing editors for their contribution. The review article is the challenge on assisted reproduction techniques in horses from Dr. Theerawat Tharasanit, a young staff from Chulalongkorn University. His work on equine reproduction has been recognized to the equine society. Last but not least, this issue contains 1 original article, 3 short communications and the diagnostic forum. The short communication entitled "Management of gastric dilatation/volvulus and its cardiac complication in a Saint Bernard" is a completed case report on the success in that condition. The small animal practitioners may learn from this experience. We would like to thank the editorial board and all authors contributing their work in this issue. You all always make it possible.

Again, there is no page charge or processing fee for the authors. We would like to encourage the authors from all over the world who work in the veterinary and animal sciences submitting their work to the TJVM. Your contribution will be acknowledged and referred by our readers in their future manuscripts. Our community will be stronger with the solid background of the knowledge that we share through the TJVM. Our editorial board is looking for a new manuscript from you.
